How the law allows us to use your personal data

We use the personal information we hold about you for a number of different purposes, which we list below. We will only use your personal information when the law under data protection allows us to.

Most commonly, we will use your personal information in the following circumstances:

- Where you have given us your consent
- Where we need the data to perform the contract we have entered into with you
- Where we need to comply with a legal obligation
- Where we have decided the processing is necessary for our legitimate interests
- Where we use your photos or video clips for display, impact measurement, publication or social media purposes, we will always ask for your consent first

"Special categories" of particularly sensitive personal information such as information about your health, ethnic origin or cultural or religious beliefs require higher levels of protection. We need to have further justification for collecting, storing and using this type of personal information. We have in place an appropriate policy document and safeguards which we are required by law to maintain when processing such data. We may process special categories of personal information in the following circumstances:

- Where you have given your explicit consent for a specific purpose such as a case study or quote or to manage your health or welfare during an activity
- For reasons of substantial public interest, where it is necessary for identifying or keeping under review the existence or absence of equality of opportunity or treatment of you with a view to enabling such equality to be promoted or maintained
- For reasons of substantial public interest, where it is necessary for statutory and government purposes
- For reasons of substantial public interest, where it is necessary for the safeguarding of children and individuals at risk

- For reasons of substantial public interest, where it is necessary for preventing or detecting unlawful acts

Because we process certain types of special category personal data, the law says that we must also keep an Appropriate Policy Document that provides more information about this and how we comply with the law.

How we get your personal information

If you use our services, most of the personal information we process is provided directly to us by you when you complete our registration form for our community or family activities or our befriending service or when you register to access our food pantry. In some cases, a health or wellbeing professional may refer you to us for the befriending service.

If you take part in our community activities, we may also ask you to complete an evaluation form or to give us information that we can use for case studies, quotes or good news stories.

If you sign up for a newsletter or make a donation, you will provide this information through our online services.

We also have procedures in place to deal with any suspected data security breach. We will notify you and any applicable regulator of a suspected data security breach where we are legally required to do so.

If you take part in one of our services, we will store your data for 2 years after you have last attended the service. Any information stored on paper documents will be securely shredded.

If you have signed up for our newsletter, your email address and consent will be added to our mailing list controlled and managed through Mailchimp. You may view the Mailchimp privacy policy here.

If you donate to us, your information will be stored in the JustGiving donations platform. You can view the JustGiving privacy notice here.

If you provide us with your contact details through the website, we will keep your details for 2 years after we had active contact with you or when you request that we remove your details from our systems.
